Philosophers often take concrete words and give them a higher meaning. This is the case for Yin 陰 and Yang 陽, suggesting that Yin, the shady side of the hill is in a dynamic relationship with the sunny side, Yang. The School of Yin/Yang was one of the “Hundred Schools of Thought” during the political era called Warring States Period of Chinese history from around 475 BC until the short-lived Qin State consolidated power in 211 BC.

The Yin/Yang school build upon the core idea of the yin-yang cycle as the crux of how nature works, with the development of the Five Agents.

The Making of a Science

Yin Yang and the Five Agents became the science that led to the blossoming of Chinese Medicine, Martial Arts, and Feng shui. While the technology of Western Science seems to have taken over the world, the science of Yin Yang and the Five Agents still heals millions of people today.

Unlike Western Science that has often separated the physical from the mind and the mind from the spirit, the Science of the Yin Yang and the Five Agents entangles them, inseparable, intertwined. In the Seal of the Unity of Three we find the Yin Yang and the Five Agents bound up in Daoist alchemy and connected to the I Ching hexagrams — not cause and effect — but the correspondences of what Carl Jung called synchronicity is how the ancient ideas worked, which are still in play today.
